St. Thomas More Academy One of 50 Best Catholic High Schools in U.S. – again!

RALEIGH (October 22, 2007) – St. Thomas More Academy is again one of the 50 best Catholic high schools in the nation. According to the Catholic High School Honor Roll’s annual survey, St. Thomas More Academy ranks at the top in “academic excellence, Catholic identity, and civic education.”

Headmaster Rod Ruiz says, “St. Thomas More Academy teaches students to use their reason and serve as faithful Christians.” As a result, Ruiz says, “Each young person can fulfill his or her potential.”

At the nationally-recognized liberal arts high school, students excel on standardized tests, and 100 percent graduate. On average, each St. Thomas More Academy graduate earns $10,000 in merit-based college scholarships.

St. Thomas More Academy students attend Mass, organize charity fund-raisers, pray for the sick, and feed the poor. Students run extracurricular clubs such as stock market investing, debate, and apologetics.

Given growing enrollments, St. Thomas More Academy has opened a large, new campus in North Raleigh. His Excellency Bishop Michael Burbidge of the Catholic Diocese of Raleigh blessed the school buildings at their August dedication.
